

Future Generations Bill Seminar

Cardiff Agenda, 5 February 2014

---

Session 1

The first session of the seminar focused on the benefits of integrated reporting and its potential in terms of strategic decision-making and addressing austerity.

- 0800 Registration and breakfast
- 0830 Introduction (Peter Davies, Commissioner for Sustainable Futures).
- 0845 Plenary session with the International Integrated Reporting Council and The Crown Estate, an award-winning organisation that has used integrated reporting. Integrated reporting is communicating how an organisation creates value in the short, medium and long term. Underpinning the effectiveness of integrated reporting is integrated thinking where resource and relationship impacts are encompassed in one business strategy and thus, one report. This session provided an overview of The Crown Estate's approach to integrated reporting.
- 0915 Interactive workshops on ways to improve your reporting, run by:
- The International Integrated Reporting Council and the Crown Estate;
  - CIFPA; and
  - Wales Audit Office and the Commissioner for Sustainable Futures.

Session 2

The second session of the seminar will focus on putting integrated reporting into practice.

- 1000 Registration and refreshments.
- 1035 Future Generations Bill Wales – Opportunities and Challenges. Peter Davies, Commissioner for Sustainable Futures.
- 1050 An overview of integrated reporting – The Crown Estate, Mark Gough and the International Integrated Reporting Council, Kate Jefferies.
- 1100 Plenary session with the City and Council of Swansea, one of Wales' leading organisations for reporting for sustainable development - a means of increasing public accountability and focusing attention on the linkages between outcomes impacting economic, environmental and social wellbeing. This session will provide an overview of how Swansea has implemented reporting for sustainable development in practice.
- 1130 Interactive workshops on ways to improve your reporting, run by:
- The International Integrated Reporting Council and the Crown Estate;
  - CIFPA; and
  - Wales Audit Office and the Commissioner for Sustainable Futures.

Llanrwst Agenda, 13 February 2014

---

- 0930 Registration and refreshments
- 1000 Welcome and introduction
- 1005 Future Generations Bill Wales – Opportunities and Challenges.
Peter Davies, Commissioner for Sustainable Futures.
- 1020 Plenary session – Mark Gough, The Crown Estate and Kate Jefferies, the International Integrated Reporting Council.
Integrated reporting is communicating how an organisation creates value in the short, medium and long term. Underpinning the effectiveness of integrated reporting is integrated thinking where resource and relationship impacts are encompassed in one business strategy and thus, one report. This session will provide an overview of integrated reporting and the Crown Estate's approach.
- 1050 Refreshments
- 1100 Plenary session – Reporting for Sustainable Development, City and County of Swansea (Tanya Nash).

Swansea is one of Wales' leading organisations for reporting for sustainable development - a means of increasing public accountability and focusing attention on the linkages between outcomes impacting economic, environmental and social wellbeing. This session will provide an overview of how Swansea has implemented reporting for sustainable development in practice.
- 1130 Workshops: What opportunities are there to improve your reporting?
- CIPFA (John Maddocks)
  - International Integrated Reporting Council (Kate Jefferies) and the Crown Estate (Mark Gough).
  - Wales Audit Office and Commissioner for Sustainable Futures
- 1230 Call to action (next steps)